DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 21, 26, 29-31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. New claims 21-31 are replete with new matter having no support in the original specification. For example, the "elongated embed" and the last 3 lines of claim 1 have no antecedent basis in the original specification. The specification speaks of an elongated member not an elongated "embed". The subject matter of claim 22 regarding the material of construction and the elasticity has no antecedent basis in the original specification. The specification discloses elastic material but not molded elastic material. There are other instances of discrepencies between the specification and what is in the claims. Applicant has not addressed those in claims 29-31. The above errors were examples of just a few.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Application/Control Number: 10/646,021 Page 3

Art Unit: 3635

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 21, 23, 25, 27-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Valentz (6324800) discloses a system for anchoring a structural member capable of being formed from below the ground comprising:

- A vertically disposed anchor footing 10 having a lower base portion and an upper neck portion; (see annotations on patent copy)
- An elongated embed 102, post or pole, longitudinally disposed within the anchor footing along the vertical center of the anchor footing 10
- A coupling interface 200/216 affixed to one end of the elongate embed for fixing the structural member to the anchor footing
- The anchor footing has a predetermined amount of horizontal flex ability, against horizontal force acting on the structural member
- The flex amount determined by the physical properties of the elongate embed disposed therein;
- The anchor footing is pyramidal in shape
- The base portion is substantially larger than the neck
- the plurality of posts and thus a plurality of anchoring systems, see figure 5

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Application/Control Number: 10/646,021

Art Unit: 3635

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 22, 24, 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Valentz et al (6324800). The method of making and the material of construction are viewed as a matter of choice. One of ordinary skill in the art would have appreciated making the anchor of any suitable and known material which would enable the corresponding and intended function. Further, the method of making is not a top of focus for a claim directed to an article. One of ordinary skill in the art would have appreciated making the anchor using any well known process which would enable the intended structure to be produced.

However, Valentz et al discloses a supporting base or anchor foot made of a moldable polymeric material. The elasticity thereof is controllable to a degree by a particular size of the molding material, and the degree of mold pressure used. No binder or filler is used. However, the same result is achieved without the binder.

Applicant does not discloses the significance or criticality of the binder and the same is viewed as a matter of choice. It would have been obvious to employ another material of construction as taught by Valentz et al to provide a portable, high strength but to some degree flexible base.

Claims 29—31 are grossly replete with new matter and will not be addressed in this application.

Applicant's arguments are moot given the new ground of rejection.
